Whilst I agree with the plastic bag ban I have concerns about how some communities endorse such things. We live in a small rural community. At times people may forget their alternate bags, including holiday makers. They shouldn't be targeted or humiliated. I have noted on several occasions that those who are adamantly opposed to the use of plastic bags can take on the role of Plastic Bag Ban Police, standing outside our supermarkets, counting the number of plastic bags customers have in their trolleys, then making their findings public - at times also commenting to the shoppers. That's not ok.
